Dear President Dunn,

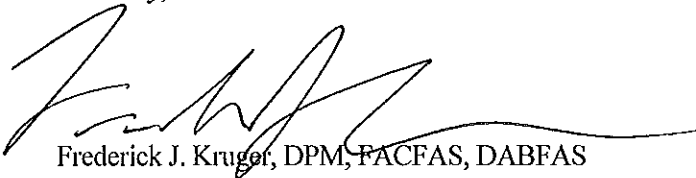

The San Joaquin Valley has a severe shortage of primary care physicians and historically our Students have had to leave our community to attend medical school and they don't return to practice medicine here.

With your vision to recruit and retain local students to help remedy the shortage of health care providers in Central California, California Health Sciences University (CHSU) has provided our community with greater access to higher education, health care and this has stimulated the local economy.

You have demonstrated your commitment to the Valley by admitting approximately 60% of the pharmacy students from the region so that your 160 students currently enrolled are more likely to stay and practice locally.

I wholeheartedly support your efforts in establishing a medical school and please do not hesitate to call on me for further assistance in creating this wonderful opportunity for our Central Valley students; especially those within the underserved communities.

Sincerely,
